1. Lead Instructor

ドナルド・ウッド (Associate Professor, 医学教育講座, 6244)

2. Instructors

ドナルド・ウッド (Associate Professor, 医学教育講座, 6244)

3. Course Description Outline(Course Objectives)

The main purpose of this course is to become more comfortable with English in a variety of health and medical situations, and to think about health-related issues from a variety of perspectives. Basically, the course will be divided into three parts: (1) reading, analyzing, and discussing articles on health and medicine, (2) watching and discussing an ethnographic film (in relation to disease prevention and the provision of health care in other parts of the world), and (3) reading and reporting on articles chosen by the students. The point of the course is to learn about health, disease, and treatment in a global context.

4. Textbook/Reference Books

The instructor will prepare the materials. Students will also be required to find at least one article by themselves. We will discuss this on the first day of class. For more information, knock on D. Wood 's office door, or e-mail at wood@med.akita-u.ac.jp, or call at 884-6244.

5. Assessment

Evaluation will depend on:

- (1) Attendance
- (2) Participation in discussions
- (3) Individual article analysis and presentation

6. Out of Class Study/Message

It might be beneficial for students to brush up on their English reading ability in advance. During the course, the main outside assignment is to prepare for the presentation on Friday - hopefully by Thursday. This will probably require students to work for 6-9 hours outside of class meeting time during the first several days.
